

General Zapata, Mexican Rebel, Slain by Trick

"Atilla of the South" Cornered in Mountains by Federal Troops; Colonel in Command Is Promoted

Laid Vast Tracts Waste

Indian Followers Cut Up Canvas of Famous Paintings for Clothing

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—It is announced by the government that Emiliano Zapata, known as the worst bandit in Mexico, who for a long time was in control of the state of Morelos, was killed yesterday by Federal troops. Zapata, who has been called the "Atilla of the South," laid Morelos waste and ruined many great sugar plantations. Cuernavaca, the capital of the state, well-known to tourists, was the summer home of Emperor Maximilian. In the large church at Cuernavaca Zapata destroyed famous paintings by Velasquez and other Spanish masters. The pictures were distributed among the bandit's Indian followers who cut the canvas up for clothing. Some of the finest examples of Spanish art were thus destroyed.

General Pablo Gonzalez, in a message to the War Department, states that the body of Zapata will be sent to Mexico city, to remove any doubt of his death.

MEXICO CITY, April 10 By The Associated Press.—An announcement that General Emiliano Zapata had been killed by government troops confirmed an earlier newspaper report of the rebel leader's death from Cuautla, in the state of Morelos.

The message says that part of the 50th Regiment serving under General Pablo Gonzalez, of the Carranza army returned to Cuautla, General Gonzalez's headquarters, to-night with the body of the rebel chief.

Advices from Morelos say that the death of Zapata was brought about by strategy. Zapata with his followers had been hiding in an inaccessible mountain region since the government troops had pacified the State of Morelos, which was the stronghold of Zapata after he began his revolt in 1909. The rebel chief is said to have been killed in an unguarded part of the mountains of Southern Morelos by troops under command of Colonel Guajardo. The War Department has promoted the colonel to a general for his feat.

Had Controlled Capital
At the height of his power several years ago General Zapata figured as the possible head of the Mexican government. At three different times during the last few years his followers were in control of Mexico City for brief periods.

Since the downfall of Porfirio Diaz, Emiliano Zapata and Francisco Villa, in southern and northern Mexico respectively have been the sources of unending trouble for the various governments of Mexico. Zapata, the first to raise the standard of revolt, is the first to fall. Villa still is active in the North, although not on an extensive scale as formerly.

Ten days ago when General Aurelio Blanquet began a campaign in southern Mexico against President Carranza it was announced that General Blanquet expected to co-operate with Zapata in his revolutionary movement.

For ten years Zapata had ravaged southern Mexico. Starting with a small force in 1909 he was able to defeat government forces sent against him, and during the Huerta regime held sway over several states in addition to Morelos, where he began and ended his career. For a short time in 1914 Zapata and Villa worked together against Huerta, but the southern leader soon disagreed with the northern rebel chief and withdrew again to the mountains south of Mexico City.

Had Personal Leadership
Fear of the revenge of Zapata added greatly to the success of the Huerta leader because, as many reports testify, he was ruthless against those who opposed him. Poor and uneducated, Zapata was the leader of the Indians of Mexico as opposed to the Spanish half-Spanish ruling class. He was a personal leadership. When he was successful his followers lived on the best that could be found in captured cities and towns. When reversed came his followers scattered. His plan for a government of Mexico was to place the power in the hands of the Indians.

The presence of Zapata in Morelos was a constant threat to Mexico City, and since 1916 the Carranza government has been campaigning against the rebel chief. On March 17 it was reported that Zapata's stronghold had been captured by the government forces, that his followers were surrendering and that he had fled to the mountains with a small band.

Smith Urges Abolition Of Courthouse Board
Asks Legislature to Pass Bill for the Sale of Neglected Site, Which Cost $13,000,000

ALBANY, April 11.—Governor Smith sent a message to the Legislature to-day urging passage of bills to abolish the New York Courthouse Board and turn over the site purchased for a new courthouse to the Sinking Fund Commissioners to be sold.

The sum total of the board's work for years, said the Governor, "was to put upon the city an expenditure of over $13,000,000 for the acquisition of property, and they ordered demolished the buildings thereon, leaving to-day a very heart of New York. The government temporarily used a small part of it as a barracks for military forces, but it has since been abandoned and the site is now a waste of land."

The Governor said a Bronx County courthouse has since been built and that the Hall of Records takes care of the Surrogate's Court. He said he meant for the new courthouse. He said the city, through the Board of Estimate, asked for the legislation.

The Governor, in another message, asked the Legislature to pass the bill prohibiting county judges or surrogates receiving salaries of $5,000 or more from appearing as an attorney in the county in which they are elected. The bill is aimed at the county judge and surrogate of Nassau County, who acted as attorneys for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company in cases growing out of the Brighton Beach wreck.

EMILIANO ZAPATA

Labor Party Makes Demand That U. S. Recognize Soviets

Also Votes Unanimously for Withdrawal of Troops; Wilson Urged to Insist on Freedom for Ireland

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11.—Recognition of the Russian Bolshevik government by the United States and withdrawal of United States troops from Russia were demanded in a resolution adopted without a dissenting vote by representatives of organized labor assembled here to-day to organize the Illinois Labor party.

A resolution also was adopted demanding that President Wilson and the American peace delegates use every influence to cause the Irish Republic to be recognized and asking the United States Senate to refuse to ratify any peace treaty which does not recognize the Irish Republic.

In another resolution the American delegates at the peace conference are requested to use their influence to secure the recognition of India as an independent nation.

John H. Walker, retiring president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, said: "Raymond Robins told me that the only thing representing decency and the hope of humanity in Russia are the Soviets."

The Russian resolution is as follows: "Resolved, That the right of self-determination and the right to establish any form of society and government desired by the Russian people without intervention by any foreign power, and that, therefore, we insist with dismay and disapproval upon the spectacle of great Allied nations calling themselves democracies urging war against the Russian people and the Soviet government."

"That we demand that hostilities carried on by American troops against the Russian people and Soviet government cease immediately and as soon as physical conditions will permit that all American armed forces be withdrawn from Russia."

"That we demand of our government that all the power and influence of the United States be brought to bear on the Allied nations who are conducting warfare against the Russian people to do likewise."

"That we ask for the immediate recognition of the Russian Soviet government to the end that friendly diplomatic and commercial relations with Russia be established at the earliest possible date."

"That copies of this resolution be forwarded to President Wilson and to the State Department, to the United States Senators and Congressmen from Illinois, to Congressman Baer, of North Dakota, and to Senator Johnson, of California, to the Russian Soviet Republic, and that copies be given to the press."

Street Railway Expert Was a Brother of T. Coleman du Pont, of New York

CLEVELAND, April 11.—Antoine B. du Pont, street railway expert, died of pneumonia at his residence here, Tuesday, April 9, at the age of 67, after a long illness.

Mr. du Pont was the first manager of the Cleveland street railway system and was a brother of T. Coleman du Pont, of New York, and E. M. du Pont, president of the street railway system of Johnston, Penn.

Spartan Parade Broken Up by Italians
ROME, April 11.—A group of men styled Spartans, carrying flags, attempted a demonstration here yesterday, but the public attacked the crowd and the parade was broken up.

There ensued an enthusiastic demonstration in honor of the army and the victory of the Allies. Many cries were heard of "Long live the King!" "Long live our Italian King!"

The whole city was beflagged and illuminated to-night in celebration of the victory of the Allies. The demonstration was planned by the Spartans in honor of the German and Russian ultra-Radicals. Throughout the city there were manifestations by the people in which cries of "Death to Lenin and Trotsky" were heard. At several points where Socialists were attempting demonstrations, the police broke up the crowds and arrested several persons.

'Reds' Attempt To Take Over Socialist Party

Left Wing Has Manifesto Adopted in Queens That Pledges Aid to Russian and German Extremists

Gaining Control of Party

Referendum Through Nation Expected to Place Power of Body in Their Hands

The so-called Left Wing of the Socialist party is constantly pressing forward toward complete capture of the Socialist party machinery. Its latest victory was won in Queens County, where at a meeting in the Queens County Labor Lyceum yesterday the manifesto of the Left Wing was adopted, pledging cooperation with the Russian Bolsheviks and German Spartacists and the adoption of their methods.

It was admitted by officials of the Socialist party at the party's headquarters, 7 East Fifteenth Street, that the Left Wing might obtain control in the party's central committee, which, as the chief organ of the party, lays down the rules and methods of organization and agitation.

Gaining in Other Cities
Similar progress is being made by the Left Wing in other cities. Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit, Cleveland and other centers are already in its grip.

The referendum election now under way in the Socialist party for members of the national executive committee, it is believed, will result in the election of a majority of Left wing members, which will give the radicals absolute control of the national machinery of the movement.

Following is the resolution adopted by the Queens County Socialists: "Whereas, we desire to place ourselves clearly on record for, and openly and actively align ourselves with the revolutionary proletarian world over, as at present expressed by the policies and tactics of the communist party of Russia (Bolshevik), the Communist Labor party of Germany (Spartacists), and other parties in harmony with them; be it

"Resolved, That we pledge both financial and moral support to the Left Wing propaganda, working to the end that the national organization conform with the policies of this programme; and be it further

"Resolved, That local Queens will not countenance or compromise with any halfway measures, but that the change in policies and tactics must be complete, even if it necessitates the severance of relations with those constituting the Right."

Reorganization Advocated
In their manifesto calling upon the Socialist party to change its programme, the Left Wingers say: "On the basis of the class struggle, then, the Socialist party of America must recognize itself, must prepare to come to grips with the master class during the difficult period of capitalist readjustment now going on. This it can do only by teaching the working class the truth about present day conditions; it must preach revolutionary industrial unionism and urge all workers to organize into industrial unions, the only form of labor organization which can cope with the great modern aggregations of capital."

According to latest figures there are not more than 5,000 paying members of the Socialist party in greater New York. If the Left Wing should gain control, Socialists familiar with the situation said yesterday, they would command the support of not more than 55 or 60 per cent of the membership.

The Socialist vote in the last Mayoral election was 148,000. This vote, however, is acknowledged even by the Socialists to be forced and unrepresentative, as it consisted in the main of elements who flocked to the banner of Morris Hillquit, the Socialist candidate, on his anti-war appeal. It is considered doubtful whether the Socialists would poll as many as 75,000 votes in this city to-day.

Anarchist Bodies Smaller
The membership of the anarchist and I. W. W. organizations in the city is even smaller than that of the Socialists. According to Federal authorities there are not more than 2,000 paying members of the I. W. W. in the city and not more than 75,000 real I. W. W. men in the whole country.

The anarchists, Federal officials say, have hardly any organizations at all. At best, the most violent of them maintain small, conspiratorial organizations, the membership of which is numerically insignificant.

Girl Scalded to Death
Child Dies Under Boiling Water Punishment

A three-year-old girl, Philomena D'Elia, of 35 Front Street, Brooklyn, was scalded to death yesterday in a ward of the clearing bureau of the Department of Charities on Blackwell's Island by an older girl, who punished her in the absence of the nurse by throwing scalding water on her.

Philomena has been placed in the care of the older girl, who was putting her to bed, according to a report by Charles Norris, medical examiner.
